YOUR IMPACT SO FAR

Thanks to your support and generosity, our work in the Lake Chad region has made another leap forward!

Reforestation

Over 50,000 tree seedlings were established in nurseries and will be planted during the current rainy season. A portion of these seedlings will be used to reforest areas that have become unproductive due to changes in climate.

Disaster Risk Reduction Committees

Over 500 people have joined disasters risk committees and will receive training, local materials and equipment to build bunds (embankments to control water runoff and soil erosion) that will help combat and mitigate flooding that poses risks to homes and fields.

Women's empowerment

2,287 women and girls are active members of Farmer Field Schools (FFS), specialising in market gardening, growing rainfed crops, and learning and applying techniques, such as the use of biopesticides and compost, to increase their yields and improve crop quality and soil health.

As a Friend of Creation, your enthusiasm and commitment to this project is helping to restore acres of land, empower women and girls, and mobilize more communities to protect creation.

On behalf of CLWR and our partners, thank you!
